

Temporary Site Management Certificate of Technical Competence (CoTC) Cover

We provide temporary site management and CoTC cover to comply with the Environmental Permitting Regulations EPR (2007) for High, Medium and Low Risk facilities.

Background

Under the Environmental Permitting Regulations EPR (2007), permitted waste facilities must show they employ technically competent personnel. Each site's OPRA score (Operational Risk Appraisal) indicates how much time a technically competent person must be on site. This is worked out as a percentage of the site's operating hours.

Site Management and CoTC Cover

The main reasons clients use temporary site management are:

- New permit applications where employees have not yet completed their operator competence certificate
- Existing certificate holders move jobs or roles
- Certificate holders experience extended illness or injury
- Holiday cover
- When applying for permits to accept new wastes not covered by the existing holder.

What we can do

- Provision of technically competent personnel
- Inspect the site to ensure environmental compliance
- Inspect the site to ensure environmental permit conditions compliance
- Advise on operations and procedures
- Write an on-site report listing advice and required actions for site audit trail.

Temporary site management can be provided alongside other training and consulting activities.

Benefits to you

- Ensure compliance with the Environmental Permitting Regulations
- Meet your competent management OPRA requirements
- New facilities can begin to trade whilst undergoing training
- Extended absence of CoTC holders does not impact on operations
- Potential operational and financial improvements through advice and guidance.
